

INTERIOR ADA SIGNS

ADA signs, also known as tactile or braille signs, are the result of the Americans with Disabilities Act which was adopted in 1990 to mandate civil rights protections and promote mobility for the handicapped. Compliant signage and graphics that aid sight impaired individuals comprise a portion of the legislation. In addition to Federal codes state and local sign codes vary considerably. These codes continue to evolve. ADA signs also include graphics that aid the public that is wheelchair bound.

Jones Sign can assist you in making sure your property is compliant by providing design, code review assistance, as well as the production and installation of aesthetically pleasing and functionally correct signs.

Call your Jones Sign representative to discuss the many options available to accomplish your ADA sign needs and accommodate your budget.
