Illuminated Letters, otherwise known as Channel Letters, can be manufactured in many interesting ways. There are a variety of lighting options that all provide different levels of impact and cost effectiveness. In addition to using neon as a light source, use of LED's (light-emitting diodes) has been increasing. LED's are initially more expensive but use far less energy and because of their compact size can be used to create a thinner letter.

Jones Sign has also developed it's own style of letter known as "Tosh". This method allows us to provide a letter without a trim-cap giving the letter a clean elegant appearance.

Call your Jones Sign representative to discuss the many options available to enhance your company's profile and accommodate your budget.
